6. Précis: This is an anthology commissioned by the National Committee of Education of China, edited by several academics at the Research Centre for World Religions of the Chinese Academy of Social Science, Beijing University of Foreign Languages and Normal University of Beijing, in order to provide university students in the arts with a textbook in this subject. The authors provide a comprehensive and clear outline in lucid styles and highly accessible prose, charting the developments of Christianity since antiquity. Professor Tang Yi is the editor of this volume, and the contributing authors are all experts specialising in Christian studies. The contents of the volume include: introducing the origins, formation, development, and current situation of Christianity in a systematic way; providing reasonable explanations of the diverse accounts of Jesus in historical literature and the Gospels; giving a detailed description of the sharing of financial resources in early Christian communities and the financial assistance they provided for the needy; exposing the internal strife and corruption in the leadership of the early Church; explicating the relations between early Christian Church and the Roman government. Besides, this book also touches on the rise and fall of the papal authorities in the Medieval Roman Catholic Church, the emergence of the Crusade and their military expeditions in the East. A portion of the book is devoted to a specialised treatment of the origins, progress and characteristics of the Eastern Orthodox, especially its impact on Eastern Europe and Russia. The book also discusses the Reformation Movement of Martin Luther and its implications, and provides a detailed introduction to the formation and evolution of doctrines, and the formation and functions of the Church as an institution, with a more in-depth coverage and analysis of contemporary trends of thoughts in Christianity, such as liberation theology, theology of hope, liberal theology, the Death-of-God theology, and etc.
